STUDIED AT SCHOOL
OF THE GOVERNMENTField Firing of Guns Taught by Army Experts at Fort Sill, Okla.—School of Musketry Now On.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Fort Sill, Okla., Feb. 21.—Artillery fire, declared by army tacticians to be the dominating factor in modern warfare holds the interest at the United States Army School of Fire,
the ninth session of which opened here today. In conjunction with the school of fire the opening meeting of the school of musketry, which is chiefly concerned in the training of officers and directing and controlling the fire of bodies of troops, was held.Field artillery officers of the regular army and the national guard were busy today with this reason of accuracy and range finding in the school of fire, which is the outgrowth of the use of entrenchments in military operations. Local officers pointed out that accuracy was considered so necessary before the Russian-Japanese war, when mass formations were in vogue. With this war, however, smaller units, and their subsequent development into modern warfare,
together with the use of high-power weapons discharged at objects beyond the sight of those firing, has made accuracy, it was said, an important factor.Three inch guns are used in the school of fire. These guns shoot a projectile which contains about 200 strapped bullets and has a maximum range for accuracy of firing of 5,000 yards. The shell may be exploded at any desired distance up to the maximum, the shrapnel scattering over the targets. The finding of the range and the location of the invisible target is largely a matter of guesswork, and involves also the use of delicate range-finding instruments.
Observation of the effect of the firing,
to eliminate errors, requires perfect weather, and this reason the eyes of the officers are examined when they enter the class and again when the course is completed.About 260 commissioned and non-commissioned officers were here for the school, which has a four months' term. Some of them, however, were here to attend the school of musketry.
It was asserted today that five of the six batteries of the fifth field artillery, stationed here, will participate in the school of fire. Each battery is composed of six guns and 180
men. In addition to a study of methods in aiming and firing artillery, courses in the maintenance of large guns have been prepared for the officers and men.Officers in charge of the school have announced that although there is a large class room to be used for instruction with the course, actual firing probably will not begin until some time in April.
Preparations have been made to take over a strip of land ten miles long and six miles wide for the purpose of field work. It has been announced that during the practice hours this will be closed to traffic.Another point of the school is that there will be no firing, except by wireless and telephone, telegraphing
having been abolished.
At the close of the present session
in June there will be a one month course for the field artillery officers of the organized militia from various states. A second session for the regular army officers will begin Aug. 20.
The school of musketry, which was organized last July, and which is believed to be the best in the world,
the school of fire, is at present the only school of its kind in the United States army.WITH GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS IN ERZERUM, CZAR GETS CONTROL OF RICH COAL AND IRON MINES; VON DER GOLTZ LOSES PRESTIGEErzurum: Grand Duke Nicholas (left) and Field Marshal von der Goltz.The victory of Grand Duke
Nicholas over the Turks at Erzurum, led by the German general, von der Goltz, is certain to have far-reaching results. Armenia, with its rich coal and iron mines, falls into the hands of the czar. Constantinople is threatened from the east. The Turks face further defeat. Worst of all, from a German standpoint, the prestige of Field Marshal von der Goltz suffers tremendously in Turkey. Ever since Turkey entered the war, von der Goltz has been the commander in chief of the Turkish forces. Until the defeat at Erzurum he commanded the confidence of all Turkey.ASKS COMMONS FOR military affairs in general.

The first vote of credit was on the supplementary estimates for the current fiscal year, bringing up the total war expenditures for the year to £1,426,000,000. This appropriation is for £120,000,000. The second vote is

Washington, Feb. 21.—President Wilson prefers having the proposed tariff commission consist of members appointed by himself and entirely non-partisan. He made this clear today to representative Barnhart of Indiana, who suggested the commission consist of one man appointed by the president and others named by the senate and house.
The president informed Mr. Barnhart that because of conditions created by the war, he believed the commission should be removed entirely from politics. He said he thought he could find experts to whom republicans could

New Orleans, Feb. 21.—With four steamers and numerous flatboats engaged in rescue work, reports from district flooded by Mississippi levee break at Buck Ridge were more optimistic.Two steamers loaded with refugees had reached Natchez today from the neighborhood of New Orleans. Two oth-

Natchez and Buck Ridge crevasse, where flood victims are suffering most from exposure and lack of food.Reports from New Orleans say a num-it had been impossible to reach. By using these boats many rescues were expected.Water from the constantly widen-

by the end of this week the pressure on continue to stand the strain today.BAVARIA DEVASTATED

REBUILD DISTRICT
WRECKED BY QUAKECity of Avezzano and Parts of Messina Devastated by Earthquake Aided by Countrymen in United States.[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Avezzano, Italy, Feb. 21.—Thanks largely to Italian-Americans, Avez-zano, which just a year ago today suffered one of the worst earthquake disasters in the history of the world,
is today almost a completely restored city.Just one year ago this day has been done towards rebuilding this city as has been accomplished at Messina in the ten years that have elapsed since it suffered a similar disaster. In both instances American played a large part in the work of restoration, but at Avezzano American influence accomplished miracles which just plain American dollars could not do at Messina.When a year ago the earthquake reduced Avezzano to a mere mass of ruins, from which only 1,200 people out of a total population of 13,000 escaped, many Italian truck a responsive chord in the hearts of a particular class of people in America. These were the Italians who themselves in years past had lived in and emigrated from the same area. The country immediately around it, thousands of these persons still had relatives there, and the call of blood as well as the call of the city of their nativity prompted them to the call of success they were meeting with in their new homes in America.Almost without exception these former residents of Avezzano abandoned their relatives in America and returned to aid their relatives and help build up the city of their birth.
But in coming back to Italy they brought with them more than the few hundred or few thousand dollars that the average Italian immigrant accumulates in America before returning home. They brought with them especially the remembrance of how San Francisco had risen from its ruins, and the memory of the work had gone through the city themselves and they set about doing at Avezzano what they had seen Americans do at Italy, and especially Messina, which ten years after its disaster, hardly has begun to be its old self.Avezzano, whose population was reduced from 13,000 to 1,200 by the quake today has 5,000 inhabitants.
Aside from possibly 1,000 Italian survivors who remain here, the great bulk of the remainder are returned Italian-Americans. That is why Avez-zano is growing faster than a boom town in America.The government extended the same help to Avezzano that was extended to Messina, but without the Italian-Americans the results would hardly be what they are today. These enterprising hyphenates of Avezzano, Italy and America have caused to be proud have carried out the demolition of 3,500 partially wrecked houses, braced up 9,700 tottering walls, constructed barracks and temporary houses that contain 11,800 roomers
while others contain 7,000 more rooms are being constructed; and have restored 5,600 of the houses not entirely destroyed.They have got the water works and the electric light plant in full operation, made it possible for the schools to resume sessions, and are laying out new additions to Avezzano with straight streets and regular square lots of town building and quite conforming to Italian customs, where irregular, winding streets, and kaleidoscopic blocks are the rule.The Italian-Americans are facing all the civic problems that confront communities in America, and are encourageing agriculture, providing credit, looking out for public safety and caring for the poor. They have in fact, even gone the American way better and when Italy declared war, sent her army a contribution of 350 men, twelve of whom have since been killed, and their places filled by fresh Avezzano recruits.CRONES' ADVERTISING

Washington, Feb. 21.—A new army reorganization bill federalizing the national guard increasing the regular army to 134,000 men, doubling the field artillery, increasing the engineer corps by fifteen companies, creating four squadrons of air craft, and an entirely new corps of cadets from colleges having military training, was agreed upon and passed today by the house military committee.Hay to Draft Bill.
The committee authorized Chairman Hay to draft the bill and have it ready for the committee next Wednesday or Thursday, with the understanding that amendments meeting individual views may be offered later.
The national guard provisions will be one of the most notable features. The committee agreed that congress has constitutional right to take over national guard by legislative enactment and appropriation.The provision for corps of cadet officers from educational institutions having military training, is expected to furnish 3,000 trained officers for use in emergency.
The McKellar bill providing federal schools in military training in the states, also was voted upon and favorably reported. On instructions from government aid for one school in each state where a minimum of 300 students will receive military instructions.Aircraft Fund Reduced.
Captain Bristol, head of the navy aeronautical service, today told the house naval committee that his estimate of $7,600,000 as the cost of the navy's aircraft needs, had been reduced to $2,000,000 asked for in the pending appropriation bill without his being consulted.Captain Bristol added he disapproved Secretary Daniels' proposal to the navy, to have special flying corps in the navy, to have officers and men should be trained for the navy's requirements, before they were given special training for air service.
His original estimate, the witness said, called for an appropriation of $13,600,000 for aircraft. This covered the cost of a fleet of eighty-two aeoplanes, five dirigibles, forty-one kite balloons, and two aircraft ships worth $3,000,000 each. On instructions from the navy department, Captain Bristol said he had struck out the proposal for the two aircraft ships.To complete the proposed five-year building program for the navy, Captain Bristol said, a total expenditure of nearly $22,000,000 on aircraft would be necessary. There would be 135 three kite balloons with the fleet, he said; 120 aeroplanes, and five kite balloons operating from stations for coast patrol; two advance base units rigible, and twenty-four balloons for provision for forty-five aeroplanes for naval militia.Number of Men Needed.
The personnel needed he said, is 430 officers and 38 men. If the full program were carried out, there would be 638 officers and 1,106 men in the aeronautical service, he said.The capture of the Turkish 24th corps by the Russians at Erzurum, portrayed as a striking lesson for congress to consider in making provisions for aircraft in national defense said Smithsonian Institute. Dr. Volcott told the committee that his corps manned would probably have learned of the trap into which he was leading his men and their capture would not have resulted.PRIEST THREATENED

IMPROVE YOURSELF.

The happiness of your life and its part and rank in earth or in heaven depend on the way you pass your days now. They are not to be sad days; far from that. The first duty of young people is to be delighted and delightful, but they are to be in the deepest sense solemn days. Now, therefore, see that no day passes in which you do not make yourself a somewhat better creature.—Ruskin.

ANSWERS QUESTION, WHAT IS THE CHURCH?

INCLUDES CHRISTIANS IN ALL LANDS AND CLIMES, REVEREND C. W. CUMMINGS DECLARES.

NOT AN ORGANIZATION

Church is Rather an Animated Organism Full of Spiritual Power With Christ at the Head.

Reverend Clarke Walker Cummings' reply to the question, "What is the Church?" was the sermon at the Christian church on Sunday evening.

"This is a day when the church is too often held up to ridicule, and ranked with other organizations," said Reverend Cummings. "We wouldn't belittle the church if we knew what the church is. It is no mere organization of men and it isn't to be compared with any other organization. Let me say also that the church is not the building in which worship is held, it matters not how beautiful and how expensive that building may be. It is more correct to call the church building the church edifice, thus carefully distinguishing it from the church. In the days of early New England, the church building was known as the meeting house. For the church of Christ is not made of material things. It can't be because it is a spiritual edifice, which cannot be built by the work of man's hands. It was referred to by Simon Peter as being built of living stones, and it was a favorite figure of the Apostle Paul to call the church the body of Christ. From these figures of speech it is plain that the church is an animated body which possesses life and power. The church is not a mere organization but is a living organism animated with the spirit of Christ.

"As we carry on our work through our physical bodies by means of the various members, the hands and the feet, and eyes, all directed by the head, so the church, which is the body of Christ, carries on its work through the members, which are the individuals possessed of the same spirit as the head, which is Christ.

"One often hears the question, 'Can a man be a Christian and not belong to the church? From the foregoing it is plain that such a thing is impossible. If we are talking of the church, and not those things which are sometimes called the church. Are the people who worship here the church? No, because the church is not confined to any one congregation, and yet because it is a part of the church. We might call ourselves the church of Christ that worships in Janesville. The whole church is not of one community. You may travel into England, France, Italy, and far into the wilds of the Congo and find the church, but not the whole church, for one congregation is only a part.

"And the congregation is only a true part of the church inasmuch as it conforms to the divine pattern. Just because it is an organization is no sign that it is the church or a part of the church. The church is most inclusive, comprising the true followers of Christ in all lands and in all climes.

"Then you hear the question asked, 'Have they all joined the church?' The church is the body of Christ and he who comes a Christian becomes a member of the body of Christ, acting in accord with the spiritual will of the head of the church or Christ. There is no voting in or out of the church. When a person becomes a Christian in fact, then he is a member of the church that includes all believers. What right have we to say you have to go through any set form or ceremony to become a Christian?

"The church is of two worlds, this world and the world beyond, it includes the Christians here and the who have passed over to the other side. The gates of death can't do away with the church for it is spiritual.

"As the head is the directing power of the body, so Christ is the directing power of the church. He controls the church and controls it with an absolute control. There is no ground of authority for supposing that this control has been delegated to any person or group of persons.

"The relationship between the head and the body of the church is spiritual and membership depends on obedience to the teachings of Christ. There are persons who are deluded by the thought that membership in the church is the way to heaven. But such is not the case. It is rather obedience to the spiritual head of the church, which Christ directs, which entitles a person to membership in the congregation bows to the will of man or group of men it is not true to the church of Christ. If Christ is not the head of the church to you, then you are not a Christian. If you can't be a member you must believe in Christ, repent of your sins, confess His name before man, and be baptized. Then you will be a part of the body of the church."

MASONIC EXHIBITS DESIRED BY ORDER FOR LODGE LIBRARY

Proposed to Obtain Collection of Masonic Works for Library at Milwaukee.

A reflection of the extraordinary interest that has been shown among students in the past twenty years, particularly in Great Britain and the United States, in the collection of both ancient and modern records and literature on Masonry, is found in the fact that the Wisconsin Consistory, Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite of Free Masonry, which has named a committee to perfect the library in the Scottish Rite Cathedral on Van Buren street, Milwaukee, is now endeavoring to obtain a collection of the same.

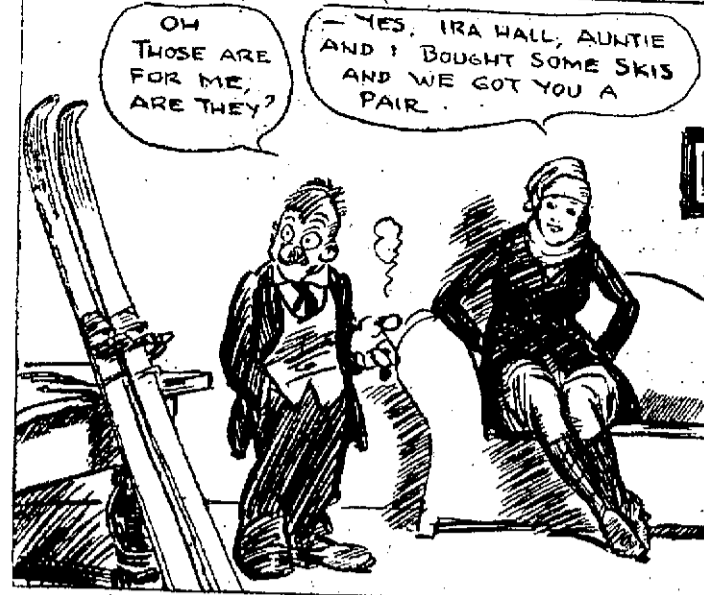

It is not proposed to confine the collection to Masonic works, but to obtain also books on religion, philosophy, history and travel, and kindred subjects, all of them to bear the names of the donors and to be filed by card index, in alphabetical and suitable shelves. It is proposed, also, to receive mementoes that may have historical associations—an apron worn by a distinguished member of the craft; a sword, gavel and similar articles. It is believed that many families of Masons who have passed away, whose descendants may possess such articles in their possession which they would be glad to donate to the collection. There are also members of the craft who have made private collections which they would donate to the collection in a permanent collection, thus ensuring their safety and their own deaths. There are others who, it is thought, will be willing to donate the gifts at once. They are requested to communicate with Mr. Crosby immediately. If there should be duplicate offers, permission of the donors will be asked to sell the duplicates, if the donors be glad to place in a permanent collection by the consistory, thus ensuring their safety and their own deaths. There are others who, it is thought, will be willing to donate the gifts at once. They are requested to communicate with Mr. Crosby immediately. If there should be duplicate offers, permission of the donors will be asked to sell the duplicates, if the donors be glad to place in a permanent collection by the consistory, thus ensuring their safety and their own deaths.

Still another suggestion, which if carried out will have an important bearing on the permanence and value of the collection, is to establish an endowment fund which may be augmented from time to time by donations, or bequests in the wills of members of the craft.

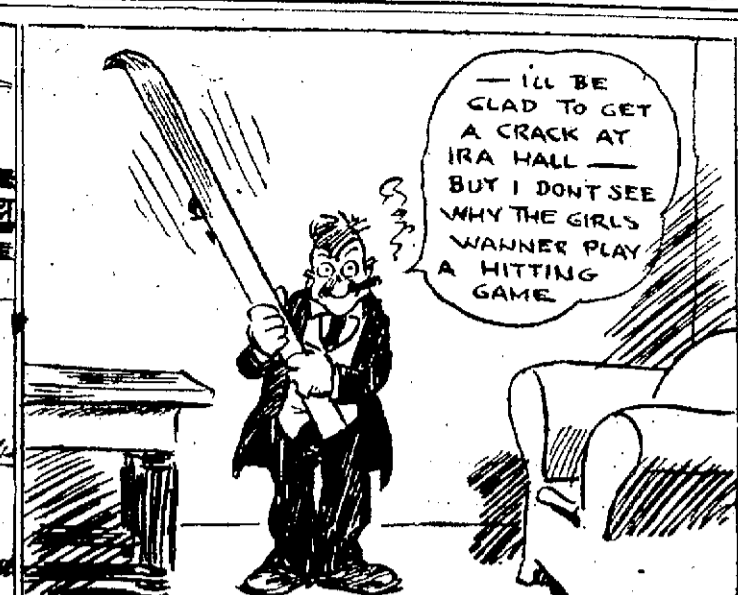

Many ancient Masonic documents have been recovered, notably by the Quatuor Coronati Lodge of London, and distinguished services in historical and literary fields have been given by men as Dr. Albert G. Reuss, Dr. William James Huggan and R. C. Gould. The late General S. C. Lawrence, Massachusetts, was believed to have the largest Masonic library in the world, and the Grand Lodge of Iowa also has a collection of great value. Some of the documents found were in cypher, and have only in recent years been deciphered. Among the mementoes in this country is a gavel which was used by George Washington, who conducted Masonic ceremonies for the laying of the cornerstone of the national capitol on Sept. 18, 1793. This gavel is now in the possession of Potomac Lodge No. 9, District of Columbia.

An instance of the manner in which records may become lost is afforded by the experience of Wisconsin, comparatively recent times. The only known record of the first lodge in this state is now in the possession of Henry S. Baird in Green Bay, Wis. He declares Mackey. According to this information Baird said that the first lodge in this state was organized at a meeting held on the evening of Dec. 27, 1823. The first lodge was actually opened at Port Dodge, opposite Green Bay, in 1824. The master was Robert Irwin.

WISCONSIN LEADS CONFERENCE RACE; DOWN ILL. TOSSERS

Victory Over Illinois Saturday Night Puts U. of W. Five at the Head of the List.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 21.—Coach Doc Meadwell's Wisconsin varsity basketball team is now leading the conference race. The victory over Illinois Saturday night in the varsity gymnasium by a decisive score of 34 to 14, places the Badgers at the head of the percentage column, and also indicates that the Illinois victory over Wisconsin at Urbana some weeks ago was a mistake and was due to poor playing by Wisconsin.

Those who witnessed the battle Saturday night are convinced that Wisconsin has one of the greatest defensive basketball teams in years. The Badgers played their best game of the season and only once during the game was their safe lead in danger. At this point Wisconsin was 17 to 12. The first half ended 17 to 10, after the Badgers had acquired an early start with several long field goals.

Illinois secured but three field goals, Ralph Wood, the sensational forward, being held to one lone goal by Olsen. This same Wood scored eight free throws out of fourteen attempts, Wisconsin fouling heavily.

Illinois were ruled out for fouling, while Ralph Wood was forced out for the same reason for Illinois. There was much objection to Schommer's officiating, but the big lead held by Wisconsin probably held back any protests.

George Lewis was going at his best and he scored five goals during the encounter. Chandler likewise scored five goals, three of them coming as the result of pivoting, a new art given the Badgers by Meadwell. Smith and Olsen played star guarding games and Hans was always on the jump.

IDEALS NO MATCH FOR FAST LAKOTAS IN GAME SATURDAY

Janesville Five Can Lay Claims to Northern Title as Results of Their Victory by Score 37 to 23.

Each member of the team playing a steady game, the Lakota Cardinals had little trouble in winning over the Appleton Ideals Saturday night at the auditorium. The final count of the game ended 37 to 23 in favor of the fast Cardinal five. By the victory over this five the Lakotas can now advance a clear claim to the title of Northern Wisconsin Champions, unless the Tomah Cardinals care to contest the claim. In the game Saturday the Appleton Ideals showed much improvement in basket shooting and the team member got a share of the score. Atwood headed the list with a total of nine field goals. Dalton was also included and he surprised himself and everyone when he got two field goals.

At the beginning of the contest the Ideals started with a rush and worked hard. Several shots were missed at the basket and it was not until five minutes before the first goal was scored. Thompson made his first try for a free throw and soon after Hemming made one for the winners. Cornell scored his lone basket in the early part of the game and later missed several long shots. On the jump Hemming would tip the ball to one of his team mates, and little trouble would be experienced in getting the ball down to the basket. Withum and Taylor of the Ideals, covered in strength in the guard position and at times one of them would dribble down the floor only to miss their chance at the hoop.

"Happy" Hooley was the scoring machine for the Appletonians and in the first period slipped the pill through the basket five times. But for a few simple fouls the game could be classed as being very clean with only a little rough playing at times. At the beginning of the second period the Cardinals started in the scoring habit. Several times the Ideals left an open field and a Cardinal would rush down the floor and score. Atwood and Hemming made four and three goals from difficult angles on the floor. During this period of the

RIPON COLLEGE FIVE WIN FROM MILTON TEAM 19-17

Milton, Feb. 21.—Saturday night the Milton college basketball team went down in defeat before her old rival, Ripon, with a score 19-17. The visitors started the game with a rush, and scored seven points before Milton could locate the hoop, then the locals displayed a spirit of team work and at the end of the first half the score was tied, 8-8. The second was somewhat different than the first, but was unable to hold it after Lapierre was taken out due to a fractured nose.

Johnson played good ball for Ripon, while West starred for the home team, and Chastant.

They say the French element of the population is "being swamped" by the influx of other nationalities at New Orleans, but the list of players taking part in the mid-winter ball game doesn't look much like it. Among the athletes were Charbonnet, Montaigne, Cazalat, Breux, Dobard and Chastant.

MINE OWNERS AND MINERS CONFER ON WAGE SCALE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Feb. 21.—To see whether they can agree on wages and working conditions to replace those expiring April 1, representatives of hard coal mine owners and hard coal miners met here today.

The miners want 20% more wages, the mine run system and better working conditions. The mine owners say their profits are not enough to warrant granting the miners' demands; and that if the demands are granted the price of coal will go up 60 cents a ton to the consumer, which will take about $23,000,000 a year more out of the consumer's pocket.

The miners reply that the war has made so much more business for the coal men that they are making more money than they ever did before.

Representatives of the Allies and of manufacturers in America are watching the situation closely and will do everything in their power to prevent a coal strike and a paralyzing of business thereby.

It is not believed probable that a general miners' strike will be called out in view of the distance apart the miners and operators seem to be on the new agreement, men in a position to know as it will be a stiff fight with a strike not altogether the mine owners' fault.

The miners include in their demand an 8 hour day with time and a half for overtime and double time on Sundays and holidays.

HEARING ON RAILROADS' PETITION TO PURCHASE MATERIAL FOR OHIO

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Columbus, O., Feb. 21.—Ohio State Utilities commissioners today considered the application of the New York Central railroad for permission to buy more than $12,000,000 worth of equipment for use in Ohio. At the request of Clarence Verner and James Pollitz, New York capitalists opposing the application and who fought the New York Central-Lake Shore railroad merger, are to be witnesses. Among those who are to be asked to come to Columbus, it is said, are A. H. Smith, president of the New York Central; William Rockefeller, Chauncey Depew and the Vanderbilts, who are directors in the New York Central.

Two TESTS FOR ANY CIGARETTE

The taste of the cigarette—according to a leading tobacco journal—is up to the smoker. But there are other qualities that you are going to stick to for your choice. Here are a couple of tests which help you decide between different kinds of cigarettes.

The first test is for coolness. The tongue, throat and mouth should feel comfortable after smoking a cigarette. If it is not sufficient to make this test. Hold the cigarette in your mouth for a few seconds. Let the smoke rise to your throat. If the cigarette contains a high grade of mild tobacco leaves, combined in just the right proportion, it will allow you to smoke and to your throat.

On the other hand, if the proportions are not right and if the cigarette contains inferior grades of tobacco, the tongue, throat and mouth will feel uncomfortable after smoking a cigarette. If it is not sufficient to make this test. Hold the cigarette in your mouth for a few seconds. Let the smoke rise to your throat. ## THE STRONGEST MAN.

The Antioch Journal recently sagely remarked that "The strongest man in the world is the man who can defeat himself."

The Journal is correct and the next question is to select the man. It was hoped that an endorsement of some candidate for the race would be made at the convention in Madison, January 27th, but it failed.

The next thing to be done is to have the strongest man in the state selected by the convention of a hundred and ten delegates who will meet some time in April to make such an endorsement. These men will represent each of the eleven congressional districts, ten from each, and should truly represent the sentiment of the district they come from.

The Sentinel, commenting upon this, says that "the main business of the committee of 110 is to pick a man who can defeat himself, not to fool away an opportunity of defeating him by making some complimentary selection that would not only tickle the recipient, but suit La Follette."

"Let us have no political blunders this time. The conservative republicans have beaten themselves often enough."

"Here is a fairly good test: Which candidate would La Follette himself be most likely to dread and dislike for an opponent? That is the candidate for the committee to pick, and no delegate has a right to let his personal feelings or connections stand between him and his duty to select the strongest and most formidable opponent for La Follette."

At present Rock county is represented in the race for endorsement by two candidates. Should the convention endorse either the friends of the defeated aspirant or the friends of the man in his nomination at the September primaries, it is safe to say. There is no personal feeling in the matter. However, should the convention endorse some other man, some strong vote getter who would do honor to the state if elected, it would be equally true that the republicans of Rock county would turn to and do their utmost to elect him.

However, down here in this end of the state the average voter thinks that the candidates already suggested from Rock county would be one of them, be most admirable men and hope the selection will come this way.

WINTER WHEAT AND RYE.

Winter grains—wheat and rye—are in position where a late-class crop scare might be developed. While considerable area of the area that has heretofore been bare is now covered with snow, there is much ice mixed with it, especially in the fields west of the Mississippi. Wherever there is ice beneath the snow, there is danger of the plant being killed. Heavy, soaking rains before the recent freeze accounts for this condition.

In all these winter wheat states the snowfall so far has been inadequate. It is needed for moisture, and it is also a fertilizer to the land. A generous snowfall always enriches the soil, and is a harbinger of good crops. In this respect the spring wheat regions are in much better shape, as the snowfall of the northwest is ample.

Except in northern New York, there is not sufficient snow in the North Atlantic states. These states do not bulk large as producers, but their crops are of sufficient importance to warrant taking into consideration in every crop estimate.

"What the spring weather will disclose in the wheat fields cannot be predicted at present, but it is certain that general indications are not as favorable as could be wished."

A SCATHING ARRANGEMENT.

It is doubtful if ever before a president of the United States was subjected to so scathing an arraignment as was President Wilson by Elihu Root, in opening the New York republican convention. Dignity, incisiveness, forceful and pitiless logic and a complete absence of violence or even extravagance made Mr. Root's indictment so terrible that the administration is today writhing under it and democrats in congress are prone to admit, in private conversation, that the former senator from New York has so mercilessly exposed the clay feet of this idol as to render his rehabilitation a herculean task. In a single chapter, Mr. Root laid bare the woeful inefficiency of the democratic party, the characteristic and temperamental unfitness of Woodrow Wilson for his high office and the long array of deplorable and humiliating blunders which have resulted from entrusting the government of a great nation to such incompetents. "The sad part of Mr. Root's indictment is that every word of it is true," said a prominent and a lifelong democrat, today. "We democrats, however loyal, cannot answer it. We must devote our efforts to trying to distract public attention from it."

HOW IT WORKS.

People who are skeptical about the benefits of dry laws from a purely commercial basis, will be interested in the following scrap of current history, which speaks for itself.

Savings banks deposits in Sioux City, Iowa, increased $10,000 the first week the saloons were closed. Many of the stores and shops cashed checks of working people who had been in the habit of cashing their pay checks in saloons. Many of them went direct to the banks with their checks and every bank reported an increased business. One man said when opening an account with T. P. Traynor, cashier of the Woodbury County Savings bank, on Saturday night:

"This is my first savings account and I want to make it $5 a week, and I am going to do it by giving you the $5 that went over the bar when Sioux City was wet."

Three hundred and fifty new saving accounts were opened at the various banks, most of them by people who had never had a bank account before.

BRAINS VERSUS HANDS.

It used to be assumed that brain work was worth a good deal more than hand work. Good brain workers have been scarce in the past, and commanded high pay. In the earlier stages of history, physical strength and manual skill have usually been abundant and not well paid.

Today manual skill is commanding more money than it did, while brain workers find it difficult to secure corresponding advances. One fundamental error has been in assuming that no brains are required for good hand work. The skilled workman knows better. It takes much mental ability to run a machine and handle inert matter efficiently, and get the largest production and the most useful product.

Mental capacity in executive and organizing directions is scarce and commands higher pay than ever. The man who can direct a force of work people so as to produce the largest and best results, gets more money than ever before.

But more common mental gifts are not very well paid. School teachers, ministers, newspaper workers, accountants, have not secured as many salary advances as railroad men, plumbers, carpenters, or bricklayers. Wages of $5.00 and $6.00 or more a day being earned in many factories affected by the war, the business. While this is exceptional, the skilled machinist earns more today than the average teacher. Factory and railroad and building work are laborious physical tasks, and take something out of a man that has to be paid for.

Modern civilization seems to train too many brain workers who fall short of the higher gifts. There are too many doctors and lawyers and bookkeepers who should be farmers, plumbers, locomotive engineers, and tool-makers.

Henry Ford's peace trip was successful in giving a large party a very enjoyable vacation, and his anti-preparedness campaign of advertising will accomplish the even more useful result of paying the salaries of editors, reporters and type-setters.

The music being rendered at the entertainments for relief of the Poles is declared to be very touching, and it is hoped that these affairs are successful in touching the audience.

Some of these legislators that are trying to make laws as to what women shall wear will perhaps go home and ask their wives to grant them the privilege of an evening out.

Warnings are issued against kissing, in view of the danger of getting influenza. There would seem more danger in some cases of catching the disease that affect painters.

Many anxious inquirers may consider themselves informed that neither of the planets now seen in our western heavens is the Star of Bethlehem.

The purchase of Home Run Baker by the New York Americans created more sensation in some quarters than the action looking toward buying the Nicaragua interoceanic canal strip.

After reading about the Mississippi floods that cover populous towns, some men go home and growl because they went over their rubbers at a street crossing.

The fact that ten years ago the farmers wanted high taxes put on pleasure carriages, does not prove that they would stand for assessing automobiles and gasoline now.

The many untrue stories current in regard to George Washington make mighty interesting material for a Feb. 22 celebration.

Many people will join the thrift campaign in order to save money for a cash payment on an automobile.

Most of our politicians would favor appropriating some river and harbor money to deepen Salt river.

The Daily Novelette

Mind the Spray.

Such a tale of horrors as I told you last night! Your hair would stand on end, and grow gray before 'twere old.

—Twisted Shakespeare.

(Synopsis to previous chapters: Banglewood, the oldest country house in Dorchester, Surrey, England, is known to have been the scene of eleven murders, eight accidental deaths. This is its reputation for being a haunted house had spread about five miles in all directions, and old Lord Darby, who lives there all alone, all of his family having been frightened to death, is now put to it to get any one to come and keep him company, even for short visits. The few friends who took advantage of his hospitable offers have spread such tales of night-horror that for years no one has accepted an invitation to stay at Banglewood. Finally, Chauncey Mizzen, a young daredevil who does not even know how to spell fear, agrees to keep the old nobleman company a while. At five o'clock on the second morning of his visit he was awakened by terrible human sounds and the rushing of water, as of someone drowning in a whirlpool. In spite of sudden trembling, young Mizzen darted out of bed and traces the sounds to the bathroom door. The dreadful agonized sounds and the noise as of water continuing. Mizzen, in a cold sweat, hammers on the door and demands to know what is the matter. There is a sudden silence.)

"Nothing's up, old top," rang out Lord Darby's hearty voice. "I'm merely taking my morning cold shower, and I always sing at my bath, you know, but it's deuced hard to keep the proper key when the cold water hits one's spine, you know."

(The end.)

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON

Talk.
Make up your mind to be discussed.

The man who is not talked about, is not worth while; he is a lout.

You never hear of a man who is not talked about. Accomplish naught. Their whole lives through.

The men who work, are talked about. Are they why they thrive.

So, let them talk. To this end, let us always pay.

Be clean and work. Push on ahead; it doesn't matter what is said.

Who fail themselves and are pushed back upon the shelves. Each knock's a boost.

They hurt themselves who would hurt you. No matter what you do or say.

If you do or say, and win the day. The tongue will wag on just the same.

It is a part of life's great game.

Personal.
Hank S.—We have carefully looked over the plans and specifications of your invention, the Handy Keyhole.

You have indeed accomplished something worth while. You say the key is magnetized and the brass escutcheon of the keyhole is also magnetized.

How unsatisfied, the key is right there to meet the key wherever the key may hit the door.

The key attracts the keyhole, but in the end, the keyhole attracts the key. You've got to find customers who are willing to admit certain things that most men deny.

Therefore, we do not believe it will ever be a big paying venture. Take our advice and stick to the mousetraps; anybody can sell newly invented mousetraps.

Poetry and Disease.
The New York bureau of public health and hygiene of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, following the poetic example set by the New York health department is going to distribute thousands of warning posters, some of which depict two children holding handkerchiefs and bears the legend:

"If you use these for the sneezes, you will stop the dread diseases."

While the other bears the words: "Protect the public from disease, use your handkerchief when you sneeze."

Managing a Husband.
Do not fail to remind your husband every few days that you have nothing to wear. Never had since you were married. Ask him as often as possible: "Why is we never have anything like other people—never go anywhere?"

Do not forget to twit him with the fact that he took you out of a comfortable home and buried you in an obscure out of the way place, and that he never has any time to go anywhere with you.

Do not forget to remind your husband often that your children do not dress as other children do; that the girls should take music lessons from the best teachers and that they should have a first-class piano and other things to correspond.

WIRELESS MESSAGE

FROM U. S. ARSENAL

Message to Be Flashed From Rock Island to All Parts of the Country—Test on System.

Rock Island, Ill., Feb. 21.—Rock Island arsenal tonight will be the center of a demonstration to convince the nation of the radio preparedness of the country's 25,000 licensed wireless operators. A message will be flashed from this point in keeping with the spirit of the following day, the anniversary of the birth of George Washington. The message will be written by an officer at Rock Island arsenal. It will be delivered to William H. Kirwin at his home in Davenport, where he maintains a wireless station. He will endeavor to send it to the governors of every state and the mayors of large cities. It will be read publicly at Lexington, Mass., and Mt. Vernon, the home of George Washington, by boy scouts of those cities, with appropriate ceremonies.

Kirwin has issued detailed instructions to wireless operators of the nation urging them to exercise extreme care in handling the test, which has been authorized by the United States government. When Kirwin flashes his message, the text of which will not be given out in advance, it will be picked up by all the stations within a radius of 300 miles. It will be repeated by all stations receiving it and in a few minutes it is hoped to cover the whole nation from Maine to California and Florida to Washington.

The radio men of the nation expect to demonstrate to the satisfaction of the government that wireless is the quickest and most accurate means of communication in time of crisis. ## REDUCE SIZES OF COAL TO FOUR INSTEAD OF TEN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Large mining companies today notified local coal dealers that after April 1 the number of sizes in hard coal will be reduced to four. There are now ten sizes. It is planned to have one size about like egg coal for use in furnaces, one like nut coal for use in ranges, a third the size of pea or buckwheat, called steam, and a fourth comparable to the present size called birdseye. Coal men say the number of sizes has caused waste because some sizes will suddenly lag sales, forcing the sale of large amounts of them at prices below cost.

JOHNSON SPIKES A CHARGE OF COFFER SWELLING SCHEME

State Treasurer Shows Up Progressive Attack Upon Administration in Signed Article.

State Treasurer Henry Johnson has served notice to all and sundry that his office is ready at any time to give information relating to state finances to any with the desire for it. The occasion was an invitation to him to answer a newspaper charge that the treasurer had been "sweating" the state coffers for political purposes. The treasurer spiked the charge by explaining in detail the correspondence passing between his office and the state line authorities.

Treasurer's Statement.

Mr. Johnson made the following statement:

Richard Lloyd Jones, editor of the State Journal, has asked me to give an answer to a certain article, not editorial, which appeared in the State Journal on February 17th and other material in detail relating to state finances, headlines of said article being, "Roads Starving, So Company Pays Taxes in Advance, Railroad Pays Taxes in Advance, Low Road and High Road Be Embarrassing. Cannot be a Mistake."

Then it goes on to say that the railroad company paid these taxes in order to swell the balance in the treasurer's office for political purposes, which may be used during the campaign for delegates to the republican national convention in April.

The tax roll in this case shows that we have forty-four railroads in the state. Twelve of these roads sent their checks to correspond with the time of payment in former years, not realizing that the last time the tax roll was made the time of the payment of taxes from February 15th to May 1st, and from August 10th to November 1st.

Speaking of the Soo road, on February 11th I received a draft for $329,358. I immediately wrote Mr. Clement, treasurer, calling his attention to the change of time payment, and stating that if he desired to give him credit for the amount and send him official receipt. On February 11th his answer to me was, "Your suggestion seems to be satisfactory," and I sent him official receipt, and deposited the draft in the bank.

On the 16th I received a telegram from G. A. Kingsley, tax attorney for the Soo railroad, asking me if I would accept of an official receipt returned to him by the draft in error pursuant to formal laws. My answer to him was that the draft had been deposited in the bank and only by legislative action could I return the amount to him. Some of the other railroad companies asked me to return their drafts, which I have done. Other drafts I am still holding, waiting to hear from the companies.

There has been no politics in this matter, only an oversight on the part of the railroad companies.

The article in line with speeches delivered through the state, in which it was stated that the treasurer's office had been "sweating" for political purposes, and that the treasurer had been "sweating" the state coffers for political purposes, and that the treasurer had been "sweating" the state coffers for political purposes.

High taxes or cost of government, be it state, county or municipality, is the only question that should be asked. "Are we getting the worth of our money?"

Honest criticism ought to be at all times welcome and helps to build up good government, by sowing the seeds of discontent, helps to tear down the people of the state of Wisconsin, and entitled to the best government that can be had and there is room for improvement.

HENRY JOHNSON, State Treasurer.

MANTOWOC SHIPBUILDERS HAVE AN UNUSUAL BUSINESS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Mantowoc, Feb. 21.—With contracts for construction of many ocean going vessels and several lake steamers under going repairs, the Mantowoc Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company has more business ahead than ever before in its history.

Work will be started immediately on the six 3,000-ton vessels which were ordered by Norwegian interests recently. Two more ocean going steamers will be delivered early in 1917. Three other salt water boats for use along the Atlantic coast have been contracted for. A fire boat for Cleveland is being built.

The repairs on the Pere Marquette car ferry No. 19, damaged on the Michigan shore during a heavy gale recently, are nearly completed. Other than the No. 19 there are the usual number of vessels in dry dock for winter repairs.

SYNOPSIS.

Little Helen Holmes, daughter of General Holmes, railroad man, is rescued from a dangerous road by George Storm, a newsboy. Grown to young womanhood Helen makes a spectacular double rescue of Storm, now a freight train, and of her father and his friends. Agnes Rhineland, financier, and Robert Storm, promoter, from a threatened collision between a passenger train and a runaway freight. Safebreakers employed by Seagru and Capelle, his lawyer, interrupted by Helen while stealing General Holmes' survey plans of the cut-off line for the Tidewater, finally wound General Holmes' plans, and Helen, who had been caught by his father's estate, is involved by his death. Helen goes to work on the Tidewater. Seagru helps Spike to break jail and uses him to set fire to a powder train hauled by Storm's engine. Helen saves Storm from a fiery death. Helen recovers the survey plans from Seagru, and though they are taken from her, finds an accidentally made proof of the survey blue print.

FIFTH INSTALLMENT.

The first four installments of episode No. 5 was printed through error Feb. 14th and 15th.

"It was then by good fortune that the conductor and one of the two brakemen spotted him. To get back quickly they flagged the engineer—the train was going at a pretty good clip—and started for the side. But this suited Spike's own game, for as the train slowed he dropped off and the crew, thinking themselves well rid of a nuisance, signaled their engineman ahead.

The train was running not far from Beaman when Spike left it, and sinking into the woods adjoining the right of way he made his way as fast as he could up to the Beaman telegraph office, where he sent this message to Seagru:

Changed the two ties you thought Rhineland wears for two that suit Seagru.

"Say, where's the nearest livery stable in this place, mister," Spike asked the agent.

He hardly waited to hear the answer given him before he was on his way out of the office. And without losing a minute he got a horse, where he had been directed for one and rode hastily away on it.

Helen, a few moments later, took Spike's message to Seagru. When she handed it to Lyons he said he would deliver it. Placing the duplicate on file, Helen resumed her crocheting work.

Paving the Tidewater camp, Lyons saw Rhineland, Storm and Wood in conference over unloading the expected ties.

"You don't need me over at the station," said Wood to Rhineland. "I'll send Storm with the men to look after the unloading. I'll stay here with these lazy graders."

Seagru himself took the message from Lyons. He read it with secret satisfaction. The moment Lyons had left, Seagru called Delaney, his foreman, told him to get the gang together to unload four cars of ties the instant the local freight pulled in.

But in the interval the Tidewater camp leaders, Rhineland and Storm, were not losing any time in looking after the shipment themselves, and they appeared together at the station to get track of it. Lyons, in response to Rhineland's inquiries, said he did not know what the local freight was carrying.

"You find out, will you, Helen?" asked Rhineland. And as he made the request he showed her his letter advising him the ties would be on the local.

AT THE APOLLO.

Fannie Ward Tonight in "The Cheat."

In "The Cheat" Miss Ward is seen as an extravagant, frivolous member of a gambler's smart set. She unfortunately gambles and loses $10,000 Red Cross fund entrusted to her care. How she secures the money from a wealthy Japanese and in attemping to repay arouses his anger and is branded on the show as a red-hot iron, are but a few of the thrilling incidents.

Miss Ward is supported by a cast of unusual excellence, consisting of the famous Japanese actor, Sessue Hayakawa, and James Neill, Jack Dean, Hazel Childers, Dana Oug and other members of the Lasky all-star organization. It is a Paramount picture and is being shown under the auspices of the ladies of St. Patrick's church.

AT THE PRINCESS.

Matrimony Tonight.

When a man tires of his wife and seeks diversion in every pretty face that he meets and she still loves him, what's she going to do about it? Thomas H. Ince and G. Gardner Sullivan's new play "Matrimony," which will be given in the Triangle program at the Princess Theatre tonight and tomorrow, gives Miss Julia Dean the opportunity convincingly to answer this query. She certainly arouses the neglectful husband (Howard Hickman) by her open flirtations with his men friends.

Miss Dean scores twice in the play, and it is by the reversal in character, makeup and manner. First she is the fond wife, who waits on every nod and beck of her lord. As her solicitation for his comfort and happiness increases his indifference likewise increases. Then he starts to pay open and marked attentions to the women around him.

The climax comes at a dinner, when he utterly ignores his wife for a scatered young thing in flashy and scant attire. Next appears Miss Dean as a woman in extreme mode. She loses her sedateness and becomes a lively, enchanting young person. She is so full of good spirits and vivacity that all the men flock around her. Her husband sees her here with one admirer, then with another, till he begins to think she is the most desirable woman in the world. His attempts to win her back meet with easy re-

"Poor Little Peppina," a production in which Mary Pickford will appear soon, is a romance of adventure in which a small child is kidnapped by Italians in revenge for the jailing of one of their number by the testimony of her father. Handed over to some Sicilians to be reared as a member of their family, with instructions to work her hard, she escapes to America as a stowaway in order to avoid marrying a Sicilian whom she detests. In order to avoid embarrassment, Peppina, as she is called by her captors, cuts off her hair and dresses as a boy.

Arriving in New York, she has many adventures as a "newsie," a bootblack, fruit vender and messenger boy. While employed in an opium den, she encounters her old enemies who stole her when she was a baby. Escaping from the den after learning that these men are in search of her, she is able later to prevent them from killing the man whose kindness to her has won her love.

"LOVELY MARY'S" MOTHER PLAYS IN "DIMPLES." In "Dimples," a forthcoming feature production, in which Mary Miles Minter has the principle role, the character of Mrs. Riley, her aunt, is played by Charlotte Shelby.

It has been noted that there is a truly remarkable resemblance between Dimples and Mrs. Riley. There should be. Charlotte Shelby, in real life, is none other than Miss Minter's mother.

Mrs. Shelby was formerly a well known actress, but has not appeared professionally for several years. However, she is always found with her charming little daughter around the studio, and when the company went south to make the interiors, Mrs. Shelby went along "Dimples" will be released February 14.

MAE MURRAY LOST IN WESTERN SAND DUNES

Mae Murray, the latest acquisition to the constellation, frightened George Jelford, her director, and the rest of the company, when she became lost in the sand dunes while on location for "To Have and to Hold" production the other day.

The star strolled away from the party and promptly lost her way. When found she was on the verge of hysterics.

Hazel Dawn, who captured innumerable hearts by her witchery when on the stage, was recently requested to pose in a picture showing a beautiful girl caught in the act of flirting with a handsome youth. "All right," answered the star, "but how do I do it?"

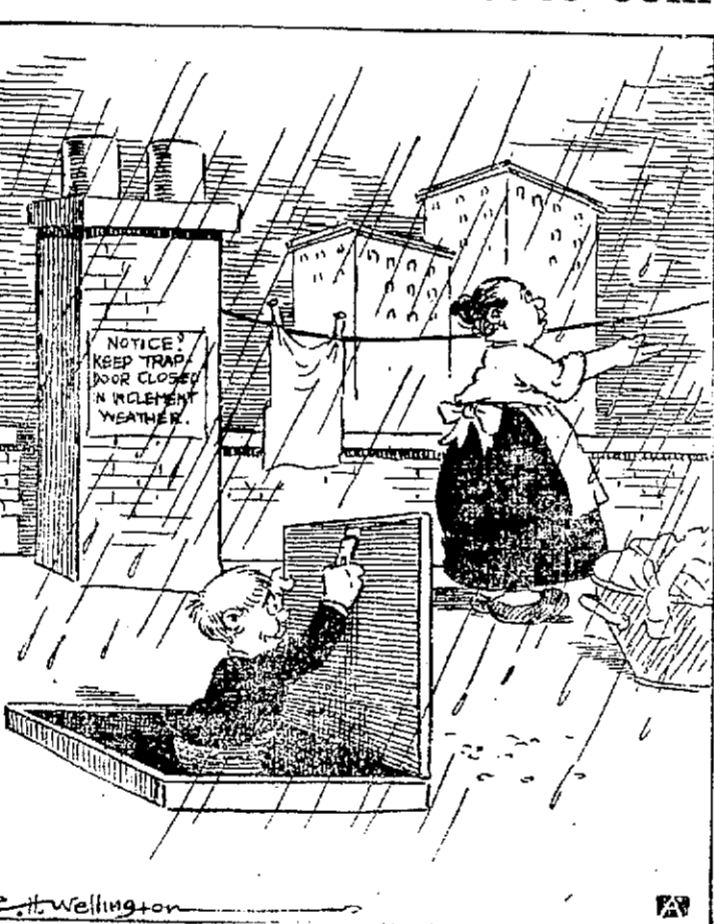

Mary Pickford in "Poor Little Peppina."

Mary Pickford's remarkable versatility, which has helped to give her foremost place among screen stars, is again shown to good advantage in "Poor Little Peppina," a multiple-reel feature in which she will appear in the near future.

buffs, as his wife seems content to let him go his way while she goes hers. When the wife realizes that he has learned his lesson she gracefully slips back into her simple role again and joins her husband in a little birthday party to their four-year-old girl.

AT THE APOLLO.

Pauline Frederick Superb in a New Role.

If the impression has ever been gained that Pauline Frederick's interpretations of the great villainesses—"Zaza" and "Bella Donna," the Famous Players Film company's production, which she scored such great personal triumphs, represent her only type of screen characterization, it will be dispelled when this company's next Paramount picture, "Lydia Gilmore," appears at the Apollo on Wednesday.

In this adaptation of the powerful dramatic success by Henry Arthur Jones, Miss Frederick plays an entirely different type of woman—the loyal wife and devoted mother who goes through the mental tortures of the damned to save the name of her little boy from disgrace at the hands of his father. It is a tremendous role, with compelling forcefulness in its every moment. Mrs. Gilmore is a sensitive, high-strung woman who is passionately devoted to her little son, Ned. The gradual cooling of her husband's affections has slowly alienated Mrs. Gilmore's love for him, and this pent-up emotion has been poured out in her admiration of the boy.

When the infidelity of her husband and his cowardly murder of the man he has wronged become known to her, Mrs. Gilmore, instead of giving way to her natural feelings of revenge and hatred for the man, is overwhelmed by the one great desire to shield the name of her son from disgrace. So, for the sake of little Ned the mother perishes herself on the witness stand and wracks herself into total exhaustion while fighting to keep the name of Gilmore clean.

AT THE APOLLO.

Marie Doro Returns to the Apollo in "The White Pearl."

Marie Doro, one of the most charming young stars of the contemporary stage, who in her first screen appearance, in "The Morals of Marcus," acquired a degree of popularity beyond calculation, returns to Janesville on Tuesday at the Apollo in her second film triumph "The White Pearl," by Edith Barnard Delano.

"The White Pearl" is a fanciful romance of the Orient, with which mystery and drama are absorbingly interwoven. In this unusual story, the strong attachment between two young American lovers survives and triumphs over the machinations of a band of Japanese geisha traders, the influence of a Hindu legend of death, which for a time threatens the life of the girl, and the caprices of destiny itself.

"PRINCE OF PILSEN" CHARMING ATTRACTION Old Time Musical Comedy Contains as Much Entertainment as Ever and Was Well Received.

The story of the "Prince of Pilsen," the delightful musical comedy by Luther and Fiske, was seen at the Myers Theatre Sunday evening, taking players and audience to Nice during the Carnival of Flowers. The fete is at its height when the proprietor of the Prince of Pilsen, who is traveling incognito, is a prospective visitor and may be expected to arrive at any time. With an eye to the main chance the Boniface spreads the news and prepares to receive the guest with the pomp and circumstance befitting the prince. He employs a band of musicians to meet the distinguished guest at the railway station, engages a bevy of girls to strew flowers, and lends every effort to the end of giving the scion of royalty a fitting welcome.

It happens that Hans Wagner, a brewer from Cincinnati, U. S. A., accompanied by his daughter, is on his way to Nice to meet his son who is a lieutenant on an American ship visiting that port. On debarking from the train, Wagner is mistaken for the prince by the leaders of the band, and music, flowers and homage welcome him to the Riviera. The brewer, much amazed at his reception, at first protests, but length concludes that the popular acclaim for the "Prince of Pilsen" is due to the prestige of his brand country of most cities in the world. A dashing student from Heidelberg, arrives in his suite, he is not only ignored, but even finds difficulty in securing accommodations at the hotel. He is told that the Prince of Pilsen's presence at the hostelry leaves little room or time for entertaining others. He decides not to disclose his identity but to await a favorable opportunity for exposing the impostor. However, he happens to meet Nellie Wagner, the brewer's daughter, and a minute's conversation with her is enough to show him that the Americans are innocent of any part in the deception—that the situation has been forced upon them, in full enjoyment of the affair he remains a commoner and permits the blundering brewer to involve them both in a series of ludicrous situations, but falling in love with Nellie the real prince finally declares himself, and happily ends the complications.

FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

By ALFRED W. McCANN (Copyright, 1915, by Alfred W. McCann.)

Indispensable food minerals upon which life depends must be in the food that man eats in order that the body of man may take them from that food.

All food contains some of the building materials needed by the body. Some foods contain all of them, except where man ignorantly removes them.

If by accident we should consume for a few months foods deficient in some of these building materials we should gradually feel the effects upon our general health. It is not difficult to understand that if we are particularly deficient in one of the building materials, a portion of nature's building materials has been abstracted we are bound to develop disorder.

When the laws under which nature operates are suspended nature does not operate normally. Man might as well expect a wheel to make a wheel without the materials from which the wheels, springs, screws and bearings are made as to expect a body to make a drop of normal blood without the elements that enter into the composition of that blood.

Nature will set up a warning for us before fatal damage has been done. In the work of repair, but if we do not heed it, we head straight for destruction, unless, in the meantime, some accidental change of diet provides necessary to the maintenance of its balance.

Food is the most important thing in life because upon it all the other things depend. Food is digested and assimilated in obedience to a fixed law. If a man, woman or child maintains a state of normal health, without knowing anything about that law, food fortune, happy accident and blind chance are the only forces which have temporarily forced the way against destruction.

In the case of the army of the dead, as in the case of the army of the living, in the United States every year by nearly 400,000 children under ten years of age, no happy accident has ever interfered.

Each little drop of blood is an expedition of life. Anything that interferes with the purity and character of the blood is hostile to life. Because man leaves everything to chance and as a rule chooses to accept the idea that it is unnecessary to heed his diet, he sends a call into the unknown darkness and demands hundreds of diseases to come forth from nothingness to assist him in mismanaging the world in its sad sum total of misery and pain.

If we remove from our food one element that is necessary to life we introduce the beginning of disorder into the body. If two elements are removed the body may make use of the other fourteen for a time, but soon the unnatural condition under which nature is forced to operate will assert itself and disorder must ensue. If three or four substances are removed from the building materials the inevitable collapse will take place a little sooner. If seven or eight elements are removed destruction becomes speedy. When all sixteen substances are removed starvation begins at once.

If we believe that God has elaborated these substances for man's benefit it becomes a little easier to keep to disregard them or to try to do without them, because by so doing man serves notice upon his Maker that he is independent of his Maker's designs.

On the contrary, man rejects God entirely from his consideration of the scheme of the universe the extraordinary phenomena which spring out of food nutrition, health, and life must and cause him to overpower his spirit and cause him to be comprehended by the human intellect.

Whether he be a proud believer or a scoffing atheist, he must see that the matter of breakfast, dinner and supper is not a matter to be left to accident or to an untrained kitchen drudge or to a food factory concerned chiefly in the profit-paying characteristics of its products.

If he is pale or anemic, if his energy seems to be easily exhausted, if he feels little like undertaking the common place duties of the day, if his children have lustreless eyes, pinched cheeks, undeveloped limbs, or abnormal tendencies, let him look to his food.

If his children are bright, sturdy, and resist illness by not falling victims to diseases which it is wrongfully ascribed to come to all children, let him congratulate himself upon the lucky accident that has for a time brought to them a supply of the food-building materials necessary to their normal development and health.

In congratulating himself let him understand the facts. An apple falls from the branch of an apple tree in obedience to a fixed law. If his children are well today as a result of the operation of a fixed law, concerning which he knows nothing, it is necessary for him to learn something of that law in order that for his children he may consider tomorrow.

If child is temperately well as the result of a happy accident, let us keep that child well by understanding the law by which health is continued. The sixteen food minerals are part of that law.

The body derives these elements, let us repeat, from its food and from no other source. It therefore follows that these elements must be in the food that man eats in order that the body of man may take them from that food.

We shall now try to determine what business these substances carry on in the body and why they are necessary and how many of them are artificially removed from our most familiar foods without our knowledge and what happens after they are removed and thus through our simple study of the facts locate the law that will keep us well.

ALFALFA AND SOIL SUBJECT TAKEN UP IN MILTON COURSE

Moving Pictures Used at Farmers' Course Held at Milton College.

—University Professors Speak.

By Allen B. West.

The second day of the Farmers' Course at Milton was devoted to the consideration of the soil and the growing of alfalfa, with moving pictures illustrating the breeding of grains and forage plants and the growing of alfalfa, the latter being photographs taken in Wisconsin alfalfa fields.

Prof. W. W. Weir, who has made a soil survey on ten Rock county farms, spoke on "Acidity of Soils and Liming of Soils," and "Maintaining the Fertility of Our Soils," and L. F. Graber discussed "Bigger Crops for Rock County" and "Alfalfa for Wisconsin."

Under the first topic Mr. Graber showed that bigger grain crops were the result of more stock on the farms and an intelligent rotation of crops, using legumes and alfalfa to supply the nitrogen, and the careful testing of seed together with the use of pure bred seed.

Under his second topic Mr. Graber showed the importance of alfalfa to the Wisconsin farmer, being able to prove from actual figures that alfalfa raised the farmers and the communities that raise alfalfa are the most prosperous.

In the discussion of how to raise it he emphasized the importance of liming and of inoculation. There are four things to remember according to Mr. Graber:

1. You can't grow good crops of alfalfa on sour or acid soil.

2. Lime takes the sourness out of land and makes the soil conditions right for alfalfa.

3. Your soil may not be sour. It may not need lime, but don't take a chance. Test it and find out! It's easy. Make use of litmus paper and follow the simple directions for its use and so find out definitely if your soil needs lime to grow alfalfa.

4. And remember if you don't believe in inoculation for alfalfa and liming when the soil is sour, I would not advise you to try to grow this valuable crop. You will have better luck with timothy.

In the Home Economics department in the college chapel Miss E. B. Kelley conducted a demonstration on "Easy Methods of Canning for Surplus Fruit Products on the Farm," giving in the detail the methods of canning apples and chicken. An illustrated talk was also given on the arrangement for an efficient kitchen, emphasis being placed on the arrangement of the furniture of the kitchen so that the work may be done with the minimum amount of walking, and the proper height of the kitchen sink, which should be determined by the height of the one doing the work in the kitchen. This talk was a supplement to the demonstration on the previous day on "Labor Saving Devices."

In the evening there was an illustrated lecture on "The New Public Health Movement" by Dr. W. D. Frost, which discussed the spread of disease and the precautions which should be taken to guard health. It was thoroughly scientific and up-to-date and was presented in a way which could be comprehended by all.

In the Home Economics department on Friday Dr. Frost talked on "Domestic Hygiene," emphasizing the fact that women have in the control of disease. This address together with the one on "The Health of the Community" by Dr. Mendelhall, also given during the Home Economics course, proved very helpful to the large number of women and the students of high schools and colleges who listened to it.

Live Stock Day.

Possibly the red letter day of the course was Friday, the day devoted to live stock interests.

The committee in charge had fitted up the gymnasium for the reception of live stock and public spirited farmers at considerable trouble and risk brought in their stock for a demonstration and judging contest.

James Van Kila, president of the Rock County Live Stock Breeders' association, brought in three Ayrshire cows and his herd bull, fine show animals. J. W. Goldsmith also had two cows and a bull, magnificent winners of the Holstein breed. These seven animals represented several thousand dollars in value.

Dennis Glynn brought in two grade Guernseys and C. A. Davis a Holstein cow and Erwin McWilliams a grade Guernsey, all fine animals.

About twelve boys entered a judging contest and after they had finished seven men used their judgment in placing the animals.

After the judging Prof. G. C. Humphrey ranked the animals and gave his reasons, when it was found that one young man, Mr. Shuman, had correctly placed them all.

This was a very interesting feature of the day's program, and those who were in attendance were much indebted to the farmers who brought in their stock for the demonstration.

The "Prevention and Control of Diseases of Live Stock" was handled in a practical manner by Dr. E. A. Beach and G. C. Humphrey gave advice on the "Care and Management of a Dairy Calf," emphasizing the fact that in order to get calves deserving of the best care it is necessary to have a good breeding sire. He showed breeders how to select a sire, and that the bull is equal to half the herd and that it does not pay to raise scrub calves, which is what the farmer gets if the scrub bull instead of the pure-bred is used.

Emphasis is being more and more put upon the necessity of raising heifer calves if one would improve his herd. Cows are becoming very expensive and hard to raise. For this reason the dairy calf should have the best of breeding and care, for if the farmer does not wish to keep the calves for himself he will find it a profitable business to raise them for sale. Some dairy authorities claim calves and not milk will soon be the chief product of our dairies.

CHAPTER IX

Gerry's cablegram to his mother was forwarded to Red Hill on the very day that the judge had gone to tell them that no trace could be found of the missing man. The judge was more down-hearted than ever over Gerry's disappearance and when he found the two women radiating happiness and excitement his heart sank lower still.

"I haven't any good news," he said ruefully before he alighted.

"Tease him," said Alix in a low tone to Mrs. Lansing.

But Mrs. Lansing had found new lines in the judge's tired face and she whispered back, "I can't." She put the cablegram in the judge's hand.

"What's this?" he said and read it. Then he gave a war-wail, caught Alix around the waist and kissed her.

The first were gay that night—gay with the joy of happy people happily planning. In a month, say at the most, two months, Gerry could be here. Spring would have come. The Hill would be decked out in full regalia of leaf and blossom. It would be in full commission to meet him. They looked at Alix and Alix seemed to look at herself. He would come into his own as never before.

The judge undertook the cabbing. He carried Gerry and the message was reported undelivered. Then he carried the American consul. There followed a long series of messages: first quick and hopeful, then lagging but not doubtful, then a wearying silence of weeks, ending with the inevitable blow. Gerry had been traced to the San Francisco river. The error sent on his track by the judge's orders had reached Piranhas to find the little town in pathetic wonder over the discovery of Gerry's canoe stranded three miles down the river. The paddle was still in the canoe and a suit of pyjamas. No further trace of Gerry had been found. His body had not been recovered. The people said it was not unusual. He had undoubtedly been attacked by tiger fish. In that case his bones would have been stripped of flesh. It was impossible to drag the great river.

The judge hid in his heart the harrowing details. To Mrs. Lansing he told the central fact. She was struck dumb with grief and then she thought of Alix. Almost basely they decided that it was not a time to tell Alix and during long months they put her off with false news of the search. They carried it farther and farther into the wilds of the subcontinent. The country was so vast, there was no telling when the messenger would finally come up with Gerry.

Alix bore the strain with wonderful patience. The truth was that her thoughts were not on Gerry. Something greater than Gerry was claiming all her faith—all her strength of body and soul. She did not talk. She was holding that final communion with her innermost self with which a woman dedicates her body to pain and sacrifice. Alix was not afraid. In those days the spirit of the race—her race of pioneers—shone from her steady eyes and even put courage in those about her.

Only when the ordeal was over and an heir to the house of Lansing had raised his lusty voice in apparent rage at having been born to so small a kingdom, did the frail Alix of other days come back. As she lay, pale and thin, but with the glorious light of supreme achievement in her eyes, Mrs. Lansing went on her knees beside the bed and sobbed, "Oh, Alix, I love you so. I love you so!"

Alix smiled. Slowly she reached one hand over and placed it in Mrs. Lansing's. "You are crying because you are a granny now," she said, softly, playfully.

Then came the day when Alix was strong—strong enough, Mrs. Lansing told her in a choked voice what they knew and what everyone believed. She cried softly in Alix's arms.

"Poor mother!" said Alix, her lips against the wet cheek. "How strong you've been! How you hid it from me! What a burden to carry in your heart, and smile. But listen, dear mamma. You are all wrong. Perhaps I would not have known it if you had told me—but I know it now. Gerry is not dead. There is no river that can drown Gerry."

"My dear," said Mrs. Lansing, frightened, "you must not think that. It's always the best swimmers that risk the most."

"It isn't that he can swim," said Alix. Her eyes turned slowly till they rested on her son. Her bosom swelled at the memory of the travail—the terrible travail that she had borne, not for the child alone, nor for Gerry alone, but for them both. "Swimming has nothing to do with it. Somehow I know that Gerry is all right, somewhere on this little world. Only, dear," and here her voice faltered and her eyes shone with tears, "this little world seems mighty big when hearts are far apart."

Alix clung to her belief. So strong was her faith that Mrs. Lansing became infected, but the judge held out against them. "My heart is with you," he said, at the end of months, "but my head won't turn. A naked man even in South America would have caused remark. Why shouldn't he have come back for his clothes, for his money? After all, he wasn't a fugitive from justice. He was a man wandering over the earth in pursuit of a mere whim and a whim doesn't last forever."

Alix interrupted him. "Judge, I have never been angry with you. We all owe you too much. But if you ever say 'was' about Gerry again—" She stopped and bit her lip but her eyes spoke for her.

"My dear girl," said the judge and only his color showed that he was hurt. "don't be angry with me. It shall be as you say. I've only been trying to save you from years of weary waiting. If you have the courage to wait for sorrow, I shall wait too."

Alix kissed him. "There," she said, "I'm sorry I was rough."

"You're rough!" laughed the judge. Then he jumped up. "I'm forgetting my duties. I have a guest of my very own at Maple House and I must go to him."

A few weeks before, Hon. Percy Collingford had looked up the judge. It was as much a pleasure to the young man as a duty he owed to his father, whose friend the judge had been for many years.

Collingford was no stranger to America but he knew far more about dodging arroyos in New Mexico on a cow pony than he did about dodging the open trenches and debris of Fifth Avenue on the trail of a tea-party. He was an Englishman, a younger son with enough money to put him above the remittance class, and he was possessed of far more intelligence than he had been born with, for, from his youth up, he had sought out experience in many places. He came back from the Klondike with more money than he needed for his passage but only a few kindred spirits knew that he had made it hammering the piano in the Fallen Star of Hope. He had the English gentleman's common creed: ride straight, shoot straight, tub often and talk the king's English. That creed fulfilled, nothing else seemed to worry him.

He was dining with the judge at the club one night when the name of Wayne—Alan Wayne—floated over occasionally from a neighboring table. Later as they sat over their coffee and cigars Collingford said abruptly, "I know a chap named Wayne."

"So?" said the judge.

"Heard those people mention Alan Wayne," explained Collingford. "I wonder if it was the same one—Ten Percent Wayne of Africa."

"That's the one," said the judge and watched Collingford's face.

"Hum," said Collingford. "When I saw Wayne he was in shirt sleeves and a battered sun helmet. There are some men that won't shake hands with him, but I'm not one of them."

It was then that the judge decided to take Collingford to Maple House for over Sunday.

Gerry Lansing was sitting alone in the shade of a bush, his knees gathered in his arms and his head bowed down. Great quivering sighs that were almost sobs were shaking his strong body. In one terrific swirl of life he wrenched him from the moorings of generations, tossed him high and dropped him, broken. Between the moment when he had plunged from the sandpit and the moment when he and the girl had stood on the river bank and laughed together to see the canoe, worked adrift by the eddy, swirl into the river and away, evels had passed. In that laughing moment he had stood primal man in a primal world. With the drops of water from the river he had flicked off the bonds it had taken centuries to forge. And now his transient conscience returned to stand dismayed.

The girl, dressed in a homespun cotton robe belted at the waist, came back down a half-hidden path, shyly at first and then with awe to see him weeping. She tossed him a cotton jumper and trousers and then drew back and waited for him in the path. He rose slowly to his feet, dressed and followed the girl.

She led him along the path through the brush and out into a little valley made up of abandoned cane and rice bottoms. In the center was a slight elevation, too low to be called a hill, and on it was an old plantation house, white stucco once, now sadly weather-streaked, its tiles green-black with the moss of years.

She pointed to the house and then to herself and smiled. He understood the pantomime and nodded. When they reached the house a withered and wrinkled little woman came out to the arched veranda to meet them. She looked Gerry over shrewdly and then held out her hand. He shook it listlessly. They walked through a long dividing hall. On each side were large rooms, empty, save one where a big bed, a wash-stand, and an old bureau with milddewed glass, were grouped like an oasis in a desert. They reached the kitchen. It was evidently the living room of the house. A ham-mock cut off one corner. Chairs were drawn up to a rough, uncovered table. A stove was built into the masonry and a cavernous oven gaped from the massive wall.

At the stove was an old negress, making coffee with shaky deliberation. On the floor sat an old darky clad only from his waist down in such trousers as Gerry was wearing, except that they were soiled and tattered. He looked up and fastened his eyes on Gerry and then struggled to his feet. Dim recollections of some bygone white master brought a gleam into his bleary eyes. He raised his hand in the national gesture of child to parent, slave to master. "Blessing, master, blessing," Gerry had learned the meaning of the quaint custom. "God bless thee," he answered in badly jumbled Portuguese. The girl and the wrinkled woman looked at him, surprised, and then smiled at each other as women smile at the first steps of a child.

They made him sit down at the table and placed before him crisp coffee whose splendid aroma triumphed over the stinkiness of the scene and through the nostrils reached the palate with anticipatory touch. It was sweetened with dark, pungent sirup and was served black in a capacious bowl, as though one could not drink too deeply of the elixir of life.

Gerry ate ravenously and sipped the coffee, at first sparingly, then greedily. The old negress fluttered nervously about the stove, nursing its inadequate fire of charcoal. Her eyes were big with wonder at the capacity of the white master. The old negro had sunk back to his seat on the floor. The two white women stood and watched Gerry. The more he ate the more they urged.

Gerry set down the empty bowl with a sigh. The rusk had been delicious. Before the coffee the name of nectar dwindled to impotency. His elixir riled in his veins. At the sight the girl had deftly rolled a cigarette in a bit of corn husk, scraped thin as paper. Now she slipped it into his fingers. The old negress picked up a live coal and, passing it from shaky hand to shaky hand, deposited it on his plate. Gerry lit the cigarette. With the first long contented whiff he smiled. The smile brought stinging recollection. With a frown he threw away the cigarette and rose from the table. "The brute is fed and laughs," he said aloud and strode from the room. The girl and the little wrinkled woman looked at each other in dismay. They seemed to sense the unintelligible words. The old darky crawled across the floor and possessed himself of the cigarette.

Gerry went to seat himself on the steps of the veranda. Before him stretched the fallow valley, beyond it gleamed the black line of the rushing river. To the right were the ruins of a sugar mill and stables. To the left the debris that once had been slaves' quarters. The fields still bore the bumps, in rough alignment, that told the story of past years' fruitful cane. All was waste, all was ruin.

The girl slipped to a seat beside him. She rolled a fresh cigarette and then shyly laid a small brown hand on his arm. Gerry looked at her. Her big brown eyes were sorrowful and pleading. She held out the cigarette with a little shrug that deprecated the smallness of the offering.

Gerry felt a twinge of remorse. He patted the hand that lay on his arm, smiled, and took the cigarette. The girl's face lit up. She called and again the negress brought fire. This time Gerry smoked gravely. The girl sat on beside him. Her hand lay in his.

So they sat until the sun passed the zenith and, slipping over the eaves, fell like fire on their bare feet. Gerry stood up, pointed to himself and then down the river to the town. The girl shook her head. She made him understand that he was cut off from the town by an impassable tributary to the great river—that he would have to make a long detour inland. Then she swept her hand from the sun to the horizon to show him that the day was too far gone for the journey.

He Removed the Danger Signal

Frank W. Sherman, Laconia, N. H., writes: "I suffered with kidney trouble, had a red feeling in my back, did not have any ambition and felt all tired out. I used Foley Kidney Pills and in a few days began to feel better, and now I have entirely recovered and have had no return of my painful symptoms."

One cannot help becoming nervous and feeling tired and worn out when the kidneys fail to filter and throw out of the system the poisonous waste matter that causes kidney troubles and bladder ailments.

Backache is one of Nature's danger signals that the kidneys are clogged up and inactive. It is often followed by rheumatism, annoying bladder or urinary disorders, puffiness under the eyes, swollen ankles and painful joints.

Foley Kidney Pills get right at the source of trouble. They invigorate the kidneys to healthy action and when the kidneys properly perform their functions the poisonous waste matter is eliminated from the system.

Dinner Stories

A fond mother was assisting the little boy the other evening in the mastery of his geography lesson and coming to the description of a desert, which formed part of the lesson to be memorized, she quoted the words of the textbook to the effect that it was a "harven tract."

The little fellow repeated the phrase after her, but his air of qualification showed that he didn't the slightest idea of the meaning conveyed by the group of words, and the better to reach his understanding the description by defining it as "a place where nothing would grow."

The boy's face brightened with the light of awakened intelligence, and the mother, proud and expectant, put the question: "Now, Johnny, what is a desert?"

"Pa's bald head," he replied.

"Drive like the deuce!" shouted Smith, springing into the taxicab. With a lurch the car darted forward and away they went like lightning.

Easy Way to Get Rid of Itching

Don't worry any more about that itching skin-trouble. Just get a jar of resinol ointment and a cake of resinol soap at any drug store.

With the resinol soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the resinol ointment, and cover with a light bandage if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again.

Choosing Your Shampoo Soap

If you select a soap that contains soothing, healing properties like the resinol balms in resinol soap, you are not likely to have trouble with dandruff, loss of hair or itching scalp. Ideal for the youngsters' heads.

Crash! They took off the wheel of a passing wagon. Hi, hi! They missed flattening out a small child by a hair's breadth. Clang! They upset a milk cart. People shouted, traffic officers held up their hands as the taxi dashed up one street and down another, taking corners on two wheels and threatening every lamp post with destruction.

At last, after half an hour's furious racing, they slowed up in a narrow thoroughfare and Smith poked his head out of the window.

"Are we nearly there?" he asked, breathlessly.

The chauffeur turned in his seat and shouted: "Where did you want to go, sir?"

Another way to take it. Don't you think my wife paints very nicely? "Charming!" It makes her look so much younger, I think.

WEAK, SORE LUNGS

Restored to Health by Vinol.

Camden, N. J.—"I had a deep seated cough, colds and sore lungs were weak and sore. I had tried everything suggested without help. One evening I read about Vinol and decided to try it. Soon I noticed an improvement. I kept on taking it and today I am a well man. The soreness is all gone from my lungs. I do not have any cough and have gained fifteen pounds."—Frank Hillman.

We guarantee Vinol for chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis and all weak, run-down conditions.—Smith Drug Co., Jamesville, Wis.

How to Make Want Ads Pay

Example No. 15

How to Sell Your Furniture

A few extra lines will hasten your sale. Notice the difference between these two Want Ads:

TOO SHORT AND MISLEADING FOR SALE—CHEAP—ALL kinds of household goods. Call at 210—street.

AN ATTRACTIVE WANT AD FOR SALE—CHEAP—ALL kinds of household goods. Call at 210—street.

COMMENT The large Want Ad tells what you have to sell—when you will sell it—and why you must sell. This is the kind of ad to bring buyers!

Let the People Know What You Offer

There is no reason being mysterious about your goods. Perhaps a woman would come from the opposite end of town, hoping you had a refrigerator. Why not tell just what you are going to sell? Go beyond this: Give some idea of the bargain side of your offer.

Your first impulse is to save money on your Want Ad. Perhaps by spending 50 cents more than you planned on, you can sell $300 worth of more goods in a few hours! Maybe this quick sale will help you considerably.

Have your furniture arranged to show it to the best advantage. That may bring you a better price. A little furniture polish used before the sale is a good investment.

Advertise in the right way, and

The Want Ad Will Sell Your Furniture!

THE RATE FOR ADVERTISEMENTS in these classified columns is one cent per word per insertion. Nothing less than 25c accepted. Cash discount 25 per cent if paid at time order is given. Large accounts 1 cent per word.

WOMAN'S PAGE

Marrying for Money

-By MRS. EVA LEONARD-

Jacob Townsend's Children Learn of Jacob Townsend's Children Unite to Save Him From His Wife.

"Say, Daddy, would it not be a good scheme to return the automobile while my wife is east? She got it when you told her that you could not afford to buy it and the payments no it are just that much more for her to carry when you are overburdened anyway?" Dudley and his sister were walking home after the store was closed at night.

"She would retaliate by buying a more expensive machine," said Jacob quietly. "You could fix that by informing every dealer that you would not pay for any car for one year bought," Dudley spoke with strong emphasis. He had been thinking of the matter all day. "It would be the humiliation to reach them all that," Jacob shrank with unappealing dread from the publicity the course involved.

"Well, Daddy, dear, it looks as if there would have to be publicity soon. I'd prefer this to making an assignment. Wouldn't you?" Jacob groaned. "I would go to Kansas City, see the head of the firm and let them know that you are in financial straits and wish to return the machine. I would make it clear that if Mrs. Townsend came to buy another machine it would be returned if sold. I would see the principal concerns that are handling machines and say that you wished it understood that if your wife bought an automobile it would be returned; that you refused to pay for one, and show your written statement with your signature. What do you say?"

"Good for you, Daddy. I'll do my best to have things turn out as you want them to," Dudley clapped his father joyously on the back. (To be continued.)

Their Stepmother's Newest Whim. Dudley looked eagerly at his father's troubled face.

"That's an awful task that you have set yourself," objected Dudley. "Don't you worry about me. It would be pure joy to head her off. You have been like wax in her hands. You have been used to dealing with women not vampires and she has taken you off your feet. Can't you see that it is war to the death? It is fight or go under financially. You believe me, don't you?" A sigh was his only answer.

"If she would only go easy while money is so tight everything would come out all right, but she will not, and she must be made to use a little common sense. Any woman who would mortgage her home to take a trip can't be allowed to go her own way unless her husband is made of money and you are not that by any means," Dudley's face with the earnestness born of a desire to help.

"No doubt she thinks me richer than I am. People here always speak of me as a rich man, and she has taken their estimate and thinks my economy is stinginess on my part," Jacob was trying to put the best construction on her actions.

"You must remember that she is not well acquainted with me. If she knew me as little as I know her any possible thing might seem true to her."

"Well, Daddy, if she does not know you give her a chance to get acquainted. Give her a sample of your business head. She has set out to show you that she will not be limited in money matters," Dudley felt that he was making an impression and meant to make the most of it.

"Well, you may go to Kansas City and see what you can do about the matter," said Jacob, after a long silence.

"Good for you, Daddy. I'll do my best to have things turn out as you want them to," Dudley clapped his father joyously on the back. (To be continued.)

Heart and Home PROBLEMS

—By—
MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to MRS. THOMPSON
in care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Do I have to have my diploma from the district school to be a nurse? Or can I get my education in a hospital? (2) Do I have to be sixteen before I can go to a hospital to learn to be a nurse?

(3) Are girls thirteen too young to go to dances? (4) Are they too young to have boy friends?

(5) I have brown hair and rosy cheeks. What colors would I look well in?

(6) Are girls thirteen too young to wear waists and skirt waists and kirts? (7) Do girls of thirteen wear high-heeled shoes?

(8) Do they wear Balkin blouses? I would like to have you answer all these questions, because I am going to get some things and I want your advice about them. —CICORIA.

(1) Almost every hospital requires a girl to be a high school graduate before she can enter their training school. You would certainly have to be a grammar school graduate.

(2) You have to be eighteen. (3) They are too young to go to dances, but they are not to go to attend afternoon dancing. —Ed.

(4) Yes. (5) Pale pinks and blues, navy blue and brown ought to be becoming. (6) They are very young. (7) Not if they are well dressed. (8) Some dresses for girls of thirteen are made with Balkin blouses.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am going to be a graduate ball. (1) I have the intention to dress as a bashful kid. I am sixteen years old. I have a pink cheesecloth dress made in an ordinary way and it is about six inches below my knees. Do you think it is too short?

(2) I also intend to wear pink stockings. I will have my hair hanging in one braid with a white ribbon coming around to the back and a rosette on the braid. I shall have a sign on my back and then act very bashful. If you know of any more attractive way I shall be very glad. (3) My sister would like to dress as a fairy. She has a white dress with the half moon and stars pasted on the hem and belt and sleeve bands. She doesn't know what to carry or how to wear her hair. She has dark hair and it would curl easily. Will you advise her?

(4) Should fairies have light hair, or would dark hair be all right? (5) Please suggest some other ways to dress that would not be too expensive. (6) Would it be all right for the two of us to go with one fellow who is masked? We could hardly see each other until it is all over. —TWO SISTERS.

(1) An impersonation that requires a lot of signs to show what it is apt to be laugh. Why not dress as Spring? You could wear artificial flowers on your dress and wear a wreath of flowers instead of a band of ribbon. With such a costume it is a very pretty addition to carry a basket of flowers. (2) A fairy costume trimmed with Christmas tree tinsel is very attractive. A wand covered with gold paper or bound with the tinsel should be carried. Your sister could wear her hair in curls with a gold crown on her head. (3) Fairies have both light and dark hair. (4) You might dress as Sunbonnet Babies—one pink and one blue—or as Japanese tea girls. These costumes need not be expensive. (5) A girl of sixteen ought to be well chaperoned if she goes to a masquerade. Ask your mother whether she considers your escort satisfactory.

WOMEN'S COLLEGE ENDOWS AMERICAN COMPOSER SO THAT HE ONLY HAS TO WRITE MUSIC (SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Oxford, O., Feb. 21.—Rather than permit financial overty to stifle the genius of the aging and world famous composer of symphonies, Edgar Stillman Kelley, the Western College for Women here has placed him on the faculty and endowed him with a comfortable home and nothing to do but write music.

"The 'New England Symphony,' the music in 'Ben Hur,' the modern music in 'Macbeth,' the symphonies 'Gulliver' and 'Auld Lang Syne' and the opera 'Puritania' all are products of Kelley's pen. Emil Oberholfer, conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, has called Kelley 'the American Brahms.' J. Walter Kramer, writing in 'Musical

STARTS FUND TO BUY BATTLESHIP

Marjorie Sterrett, a thirteen-year-old girl of Brooklyn, has started a fund to buy a battleship.

Marjorie Sterrett, a thirteen-year-old girl of Brooklyn, has started a fund to buy a battleship. She earned the first dime for the fund by helping her mother in her housework, and sent the money with a letter to a New York newspaper.

America," referred to the "New England Symphony" as "America's most notable symphony."

In a little farmhouse two miles east of this city, Kelly spent two years writing "New England." It cost $1000 to publish it and it is much played but little purchased. Writing music that will live is poor business, financially.

Kelly had been in Germany nine years when the college offered him the Composition Fellowship. With his wife, herself a talented musician, Kelly now lives at the college. He is 58 and such an ardent worker that his wife has to watch him carefully to see that he doesn't forget that his dinner is sitting beside him.

Hand-embroidered waists become worn under the arms and at the style they are still good enough to make several small articles.

If of thin material and buttoned down the back, there will be enough goods in the front of waist for an ordinary cap. The plain round caps are easiest made, but there are other pretty patterns to be had. If the waists are trimmed with lace insertion, so much the better.

Baby pillows, round, square or oblong, can also be made if the waist is in fairly good shape.

Pretty aprons can be made from the waists embroidered in groups of flowers. If a large pattern is embroidered on the waist, cut the apron so the largest part of the design is at the bottom of apron. Strings for the apron can be made from the sleeves of the waist, or any white material.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. A coffee strainer is a fine thing to have. It is made of brass, has a handle of wood, and is used for straining coffee. It is a very handy thing to have in the kitchen.

To clean silk or fine goods of a delicate color, use a basin large enough to hold the garment and a naptha enough to wash it in, then take a white soap and rub gently on the soiled parts; press out under the hands and take clean naptha enough to rinse well. Hang out of doors for one hour. Makes gloves or dress goods like new. Be careful not to work near a fire.

If Your Rubber Plant is looking sickly, setting brown spots on them and falling off, take dry naphtha, put it in water and pour on the earth; then watch for the worms to come to the top, which they will soon do, and you can gather them.

Your plant will brighten and grow. In Cutting the Fur Bands, so popular now, turn with fur side down, mark your strips with a pen-knife on skin side and cut with a razor blade, easily done and does not leave a ragged appearance.

Easy Way to Thread Sewing Machine Needle—Put something white under needle.

In Washing Curfains of Madras, stitch them on curtain stretchers; they have the appearance of being new and do not need to be ironed.

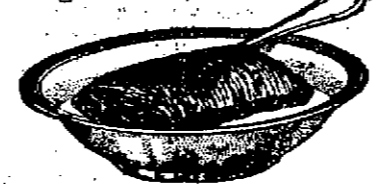

MARMALADES. Orange-Grapefruit—Half a grapefruit, two oranges, one lemon; cut in fine pieces, add seven pints water and let stand twenty-four hours. Next morning cook two hours, then stand again twenty-four hours. Next day add five pounds granulated sugar and cook two hours or until it thickens. This makes about twenty-four glasses and is fine.

Orange-Lemon—Wash thoroughly and wipe four oranges and two lemons. Strip oranges rind and pulp with a sharp knife removing the seeds. Grate the lemon rind and add lemon juice to the oranges. Measure fruit and add an equal part of water. Stir well and set aside in an earthen bowl for twenty-four hours. Then put fruit over fire and boil until tender; set aside again for twenty-four hours. Measure fruit again and add sugar cup for cup, boil until consistency of marmalade (about twenty-five to thirty minutes). This makes about seven jelly glasses and will be a pretty clear orange color. This marmalade may be finished in one day, but is much improved if set aside and finished as above.

ERROR. Ignorance has no light, but Error follows a false one. The consequence is that Error, when she retraces her steps, has farther to go before she can arrive at truth than Ignorance. Colton.

"GINGLES JINGLES" HOBBIES. Have you got a hobby you really enjoy? Have you made it a pal and a friend? Can you stop your vacation and get recreation, the time with this hobby you spend? And is the indulgence you get in this way quite refreshing and helpful as well; can you go to it feeling that while you are spending, you have for the proper thing felt? Remember your hobby is aces with you, it improves or puts you on the friz. And would you be cheerful, get this little earful; your hobby lands hard when it hits. And thus 'tis important that you should use thought, and aim to be wise in your choice, get busy and lobby for some useful hobby; it's right that you should have a voice. For all of the time that you spend in this way, you will find is creative indeed; for thus you are hewing a course that's undoing, or building the path you will need. So if you've a hobby you truly enjoy, so delightful it never grows stale, you're fortunate, very; rejoice and be merry, you're not a poor fish—Linn H. Single.

THE MEDULLA

Call it just the medulla and never mind its shape. It is the upper end of the spinal cord, the bulb, about an inch long and lies upon the base of the skull just within the opening where the spinal cord enters.

In the medulla are the nerve centers which control the most vital functions—the centers of respiration, swallowing, breathing, the vaso-motor center, centers governing heart action, the sneezing center, the coughing center, the center governing the act of vomiting and others.

In vivisection it is common practice to slip a slender, probe-like instrument into the medulla and break the soft substance up. This kills the animal instantly and painlessly and with more pain than would be caused by a hypodermic needle.

In this little medulla of man, a structure you could inclose in a nutshell, life resides. Other parts of the brain, the cerebellum, the cerebrum, the spinal cord is essential for carrying impulses to and from the brain and the limbs, but life itself requires only an intact medulla. The breathing center has been supposed to be the vital point. When it is destroyed the animal feels no desire to breathe. But it is incorrect to say that death occurs simultaneously with the cessation of breathing. Any normal person can hold his breath forty seconds, and by first breathing just a trifle more deeply for two minutes, he can easily hold his breath two minutes. One student held his breath eight minutes, another ten minutes, by inhaling some oxygen just before the test. Probably the nearest approach to instantaneous death is a moment when one is in the middle of some task which cannot be left. When the Telephone Call is inconvenient.

And yet, on second thoughts, I should hardly call this a dilemma at all, because, to my mind at least, it admits of but one course of action. Explain to the telephone caller that it isn't convenient to talk at just that moment and that you will call her up a little later. But make your explanation immediately—thus taking any sting out of the situation. Nobody likes to have the truth leak out in the middle of the conversation that the other party didn't want to converse has been doing it under great duress. At times it is difficult to warn the telephone caller without making one's guests feel embarrassed. For this situation, my telephone friends and I have invented a little formula of warning. Either one who wants to warn the other inquires, "How is So-and-so?" (a mythical personage). The inquiry is a code expression for "Is he busy?" and the other understands and promptly rings off. These are suggestions of my own preferences, but no one will go far astray in any of these matters who takes his common sense and the old definition of politeness, "to do or say the kindest thing in the kindest way."

Quick results—that's everybody's experience with want ads.

OBLONGATA

powerful electric shock through the medulla and brain. Even then the heart may continue to beat feebly for a time. The person drowned may be to all appearances dead—no heart beat, no breathing—and yet be resuscitated if the bystander knows how to perform Shaeffer's method of artificial respiration, which every child can learn in a few moments. Death is a relative term. No one can say really when life ends, excepting in our arbitrary fashion of defining death by the cessation of heart-beat and breathing.

In the medulla life presides. And in one little point the very center of life is situated. What do we find when we scrutinize this area under the microscope? We find cells, protoplasm. Beyond this we can never hope to see with these sealy eyes of ours. Of course there is something beyond that. It is what various peoples call Allah, The Great Spirit, God.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
I am informed that one part cream of tartar and two parts epsom salts dissolved in twenty parts of water, teaspoonful on rising and at bedtime in a bottle of cold water is good to thin the blood. Is it true?

Answer—It would tend rather to make the blood more concentrated. It would tend to lower blood-pressure which by fancy, is what people mostly need when they think they have too much blood.

Pain and Cancer
Is pain the first symptom of internal cancer?

Answer—Not always. Cancer may be far advanced before pain is noticed, and it may be painless throughout.

THE KINDEST THING

When anyone wants to tell you a story or a personal anecdote which he has told you before, is it kinder to warn him of that fact or to let him go on?

That subject came up for discussion before the open fire the other night.

What do you think about it, reader friends?

Personally, I would much rather be warned at once, but I don't think one can rightly apply the Golden Rule here, because other people don't always want the same thing one wants one's self.

I suppose it is a matter which depends somewhat on circumstances—your degree of intimacy with the raconteur, the stage the story has reached before you recognize it, and your own ability as an actor or actress.

Tell Him at Once, if at All
If one knows the raconteur only slightly—one might not feel like doing such a intimate thing as warning him. Again, if the story has been half told before you recognize it, what use to warn him? You add all the embarrassment of feeling he has bored you to all the discomfort of being interrupted and robbed of his climax. And yet again, if you aren't a good enough actor to appear interested and amused at the proper point, better speak out frankly than have the raconteur suspect his mistake from your manner.

If there is anything I dislike it is to be allowed to tell a story and then to be assailed with the suspicion that I have told it before.

A somewhat similar dilemma occurs when one is called up on the telephone by a friend when one has guests or is about to get out, or at the moment when one is in the middle of some task which cannot be left.

CHARGES SOUTHERN COTTON MILL OWNERS ARE AGAINST THE NEW CHILD LABOR LAW

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Washington, Feb. 21.—Charging that southern cotton mill interests are conspiring to kill the child labor bill, Representative Keating of Colorado, its author, today issued a warning to the public and an appeal to "write your congressman."

"The plan of the selfish interests is to stave off action on the bill until it is sidetracked by the preparedness program and put over at least until next term," said Keating. "The cotton mill interests hope to delay any action by the Senate Interstate Commerce committee, which is friendly to the legislation and reported it last session. They propose to this and that the legislative committee visit the mill districts."

By holding up the bill in committee until the preparedness bills get before the Senate, they plan to have 8 or 10 southern Democratic Senators then endles allyster against the preparedness measures unless the child labor bill is sidetracked for the session. I then hoped to sacrifice the child labor bill in the interest of the preparedness program. The people should know just what this conspiracy is. They should write their congressmen and senators. Senator Robinson of Arkansas, who is in charge of the bill in the Senate, is friendly to the measure."

SEVEN CANDIDATES ARE OUT FOR MAYOR IN MADISON

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Madison, Wis., Feb. 21.—Madison is surfeited with mayoralty candidates. Seven have already entered the field and more announcements are expected. In the list of candidates are two men who have formerly held the office—J. C. Schnorr and John H. Heim. Former Alderman C. W. Constantine is out with a platform for strict law enforcement; Jabe Alford is for lowering the city taxes, and George C. Sayle is for a business administration. The two other candidates are Leopold Sommers, who is running as a conservative and Edward Conney, who is identified with the socialist party. Mayor A. H. Kaiser, who was elected two years ago, refuses to be a candidate for re-election.

FACTORY TO HOME

How Would You Like to Buy a Piano or Player Piano At a Factory Price--A Positive Saving From $150 to $200.

There is only one way to save money in buying a player or piano and that is to buy it direct from the manufacturer. When you do this you are eliminating the middle man's profit, and by buying direct from the manufacturer you get the strongest guarantee possible.

Our factory representative will be in Janesville this week only. Come in and see him personally and let him demonstrate to you that we can actually save you from $150 to $200 in our straight factory to home sale that is going on this week. No piano dealer in Janesville can boast of a greater financial backing than the Story & Clark Piano Co. Now you can buy a player piano at a price that an ordinary piano would cost you. Come in and let us demonstrate to you our high grade line sold direct from Factory to Home. You will at once become convinced and we are sure that you will want one of these players or pianos in your home. The players that we offer in this sale run from $285 up and the pianos from $133 up. Do not pass up this opportunity to take advantage of this GREAT FACTORY TO HOME SALE.

Player Piano At Factory Price, $285

Retailers would ask you $400.

For $285.00, you can buy a player that probably retailers would ask all the way from $400 to $475 for. This price of $285 for this fine 88 note, fully guaranteed, player piano is only made possible through this GREAT FACTORY TO HOME method of selling pianos.

The player piano is an 88-note instrument, plays any 88-note roll, fully guaranteed by the manufacturer and is an instrument that will give you constant source of enjoyment and the price is so small and the terms so easy that you will never miss this small amount of money. Fifteen rolls of music, bench and delivery free.

FREE TRIAL IN YOUR OWN HOME

You would not think of buying a shoe or a suit of clothes until you had tried it on. You would not think of buying an automobile until you had taken a ride in it. Neither should you buy a piano until you have tried it in your home, until you have satisfied yourself that it is the piano that you want. This GREAT FACTORY TO HOME SALE gives you this privilege, gives the privilege to any responsible wage-earning family to take in their own home and thoroughly test out the piano or the player and without costing them one cent until they are satisfied that it is the piano they want. Surely a stronger argument cannot be offered by any retailer or manufacturer in behalf of their goods.

ONLY WHEN A MANUFACTURER MANUFACTURES PIANOS AND PLAYER PIANOS AND SELLS THEM DIRECT FROM THE FACTORY TO THE HOME, IS IT POSSIBLE TO OBTAIN AN INSTRUMENT AT A FACTORY PRICE.

Story & Clark Piano Company, considered today, the world's largest manufacturers and distributors of high grade pianos and player pianos, stand back of every piano that they manufacture with a guarantee not for one year or for a number of years, but for a lifetime. That means should there be a flaw or defect, that we stand ready to make good and you are fully protected by an iron clad guarantee.—A Guarantee that guarantees.
